Writing Forms: Genres

Students	Learning Continuum Statements:
Students:	RIT 161-170: • Recognizes a letter • Recognizes a thank-you note • Understands characteristics of creative writing
Students:	RIT 171-180: • Determines the most effective type of personal writing • Identifies the form of writing appropriate to audience and purpose • Recognizes a set of directions • Recognizes an advertisement • Recognizes an invitation • Recognizes format and parts of a friendly letter • Recognizes when the purpose of writing is to persuade • Understands characteristics of creative writing
Students:	RIT 181-190: • Determines the most effective type of personal writing • Identifies the form of writing appropriate to audience and purpose • Recognizes a set of directions • Recognizes an advertisement • Recognizes format and parts of a business letter • Recognizes format and parts of a friendly letter • Recognizes when the purpose of writing is to persuade • Understands characteristics of creative writing • Understands characteristics of descriptive writing • Understands characteristics of personal writing
Students:	RIT 191-200: • Determines the most effective type of personal writing • Identifies the form of writing appropriate to audience and purpose • Recognizes a set of directions • Recognizes an advertisement • Recognizes format and parts of a business letter • Recognizes format and parts of a friendly letter • Recognizes when the purpose of writing is to persuade • Understands characteristics of creative writing • Understands characteristics of descriptive writing • Understands characteristics of personal writing • Understands characteristics of research reports

Students:	RIT 201-210:

- Determines the most effective type of personal writing
- Formats addresses on envelopes
- Identifies the form of writing appropriate to audience and purpose
- Identifies the major modes of writing
- Recognizes expository writing
- Recognizes format and parts of a business letter
- Recognizes format and parts of a friendly letter
- Recognizes media reporting
- Recognizes when the purpose of writing is to persuade
- Understands characteristics of creative writing
- Understands characteristics of descriptive writing
- Understands characteristics of how-to writing
- Understands characteristics of literary response
- Understands characteristics of personal writing
- Understands characteristics of research reports

Students:	RIT 211-220:

- Identifies the form of writing appropriate to audience and purpose
- Identifies the major modes of writing
- Recognizes expository writing
- Recognizes format and parts of a business letter
- Recognizes format and parts of an e-mail
- Recognizes legal writing
- Recognizes narrative writing
- Recognizes when the purpose of writing is to persuade
- Recognizes workplace writing
- Understands characteristics of creative writing
- Understands characteristics of descriptive writing
- Understands characteristics of different forms of poetry
- Understands characteristics of dramas and plays
- Understands characteristics of expository writing
- Understands characteristics of how-to writing
- Understands characteristics of literary response
- Understands characteristics of personal writing
- Understands characteristics of persuasive writing
- Understands characteristics of research reports

Students:	RIT 221-230:

- Identifies the form of writing appropriate to audience and purpose
- Identifies the major modes of writing
- Recognizes expository writing
- Recognizes narrative writing
- Recognizes when the purpose of writing is to persuade
- Recognizes workplace writing
- Understands characteristics of creative writing
- Understands characteristics of descriptive writing

- Understands characteristics of different forms of poetry
- Understands characteristics of literary response
- Understands characteristics of persuasive writing
- Understands characteristics of research reports

Students:

RIT 231-240:

- Identifies the major modes of writing
- Recognizes expository writing
- Recognizes workplace writing
- Understands characteristics of different forms of poetry
- Understands characteristics of satire

Students:

RIT 241-250:

- Identifies the major modes of writing
- Understands characteristics of different forms of poetry